By now you might be tired of hearing the same old Christmas songs but not quite adventurous enough for punk rock Christmas carols. If so, why not check out something new? Specifically, check out a Christmas cut from PEACH.

For those not up on indie artists, PEACH is a Los Angeles-based singer-songwriter and guitarist. She sometimes performs solo or with one of a few different backing bands. Her signature sound is a blend of blues and jazz with a tinge of rock.

Her career is decades long and is highlighted by numerous musical moments. In 1976 PEACH toured Japan as a solo artist. After returning home to the US, she played with Jim Messina of Loggins and Messina. Her debut disc, the EP The Cure for You, was released in 2001.

In the giving spirit of the holiday season, PEACH is offering a free Christmas cut to all her fans and music lovers everywhere. In a recent e-interview she said the name of the track is “Merry Christmas Baby.”

She added: “This song was recorded several years ago with my regular keyboardist Ken Stange (Joe Cocker) but never released. Just stored away like a shiny penny.”

PEACH is currently working out the details of her next tour. Thus far she has dates booked in Copenhagen, Denmark. There she will play with a backing band named The Almost Blues Band February 25, 26 and 27.

They will be appearing at the Café Bartof, Frederiksberg, Copenhagen, Denmark. She will be recording a live album while there. Finally, she is also planning her Scandinavian Tour for the summer of 2016 with gigs in such locales as Denmark, Sweden, Germany and England.

So if you're tired of the usual holiday cheer, check out PEACH singing "Merry Christmas Baby." PEACH reminds one and all the song is now available as free download on Facebook, or at (her official website) www.peach.us. She concludes: "I'm wishing you peace in 2016."
